Connecting readers with writers

Progressive march of technology, with its origins in printing traced to several centuries past and currently reaching the digital era, thanks to the emergence of electronics, has resulted in a sea change of people engaging themselves in daily life that words cannot cover exhaustively. For sure, the two inventions, namely radio (for transmitting information to be had by listening) and television (for telecast of matter with visuals along with sound) for viewing effortlessly have virtually weaned away people from compulsion of reading. The lament by seasoned litterateurs that reading habit of people at large is on the wane is not only well-founded but also blamed on the all-conquering digital technology, marked by speed of communication and global outreach to all sections of the targeted populations like never before. The other lament that the poor quality of literature being currently produced in various forms such as novels, biographies, travelogues, poems, articles in periodicals and so on is heard without any response from their authors at large.

Awards of Nobel Prize for Literature in recent years have met with remarks that reflect disapproval in many circles of reviewers of publications in different languages of various countries. The latest award for literature has been marked by a departure from the routine, namely the work chosen for the award happens to be in the class of short stories as opposed to longer works of fiction.

The tradition of grandparents in the now-disappearing large families captivating the minds of toddlers ahead of starting their school life by narrating stories drawn from the land's epics and other rich sources such as Panchatantra and Aesop's Fables has yielded place to the young minds glued to electronic devices totally lost in playing games. A few years before this change happened, the land witnessed a doyen of short story writers from Karnataka getting bestowed the most prestigious literary award namely, Juanpith Award. Some periodicals are still promoting short story writing by publishing the works of novice writers and even offering cash prizes in token of appreciating the effort.

Mysuru hosts a voluntary organisation devoted to story-telling once a week, thus sowing the seeds of nurturing a dying art. Given the undisputed fact of reading long works of literature having waned, the same avenues that have caused this change, namely digital devices, can be exploited to rekindle the reading habit and incidentally connect the readers with the writers.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

If people are known by the company they keep, the 1980s qualified as particularly toxic times. New Delhi then was vastly different from the megapolis it is today, but in at least one respect it continues to drag its fee — enabling the security of its working women. There were fewer women in offices then, though certain professions attracted a larger number of them — Advertising, journalism, travel, hospitality, design, fashion, interiors and other so-called 'soft' options. It was a time also of rebellion, a hangover from the 70s so "liberated" women who expressed their views freely, smoked and — worse — drank, were considered of 'loose' character. Any promotion or notch of professional success was put down to "sleeping with the boss." The terms "women" and "achievement" together represented an oxymoron for many. — Kishore Singh in Business Standard

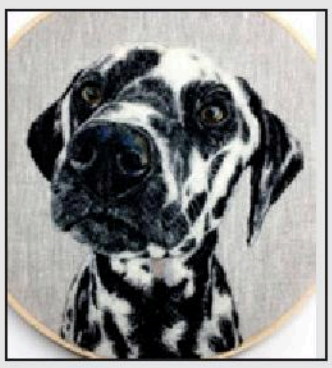
Portraits entirely out of handwritten text

California: Artist Phil Vance of California has spent hundreds of hours creating typography portraits of historical icons entirely out of handwritten words and phrases.

From a distance, Phil Vance's typography portraits look like expertly drawn artworks, but as you go near to them, you start to see that every feature is actually made up of handwritten text. Once you start deciphering all the words, you realise they are famous quotes of the subject written over and over again. The talented artist describes his art as "cross-hatching but with words."

Most of Phil Vance's typography portraits are black and white, but he recently tried his hand at a color portrait of the late Heath Ledger as The Joker and it turned out to be a really good idea.

Realistic portraits made from wool



Arkansas: Looking at Dani Ives' impressive portfolio of "wool paintings" it's hard to believe that she only uses a barbed felting needle to manipulate colored strands of wool on a basic foam pad, in order to achieve impressive results. The self-taught artist developed her own technique, which helped her push the boundaries of this centuries-old art form.

Dani started her journey into the world of felting by creating "cute 3-d animals and then pincushions and jewelry", but one day, she got the idea to flatten her design and turn into a wool painting. She felt that using the needle as a paintbrush and the wool as paint filled an artistic gap, so she stuck to it, eventually honing her skill to an incredible level.

PM unveils Statue of Unity

New Delhi, Oct. 31 (UNI&Agencies)- Eight years after proposing the ambitious project, Prime Minister Narendra Modi this morning unveiled the Statue of Unity — the world's tallest statue at 182 metres — built in honour of freedom fighter and India's first Home Minister Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel.

Air Force planes showered flowers on the statue in a grand inaugural event on the banks of the Narmada River in Gujarat as Modi dedicated it to the nation. Modi poured soil and Narmada water into a 'Kalash' to mark the birth anniversary of Sardar Patel. He also did a virtual "Abhishek" of the statue with the help of a lever.

As part of 143rd birth anniversary of Sardar Patel, people across the country including Mysuru participated in the 'Run for Unity' this morning.

At 182 metres, the Sardar Patel statue is twice the height of the Statue of Liberty in New York City and four times that of Christ the Redeemer in Rio de Janeiro. It has been built on a rocky island on the Narmada river, 3.5-km South of the Sardar Sarovar Dam at Kevadia in Narmada district of Gujarat.

On Oct. 29, 2013, Modi, who was then the Gujarat Chief Minister, along with then Prime Minister Dr. Manmohan Singh, shared a rare platform in Ahmedabad on the inauguration of a museum built by the Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel Memorial Society. Modi and Singh took digs at each other, keen to appropriate Sardar Patel's legacy for their respective parties.

Two days later (Oct. 31), Modi laid the foundation stone for Statue of Unity. Patel belonged to the Congress, but is a hero to the BJP, which contrasts his iron man qualities with what it calls the weaknesses of Jawaharlal Nehru, the first Prime Minister of India. Modi has on several occasions said Patel was ignored by the Congress and not allowed to become India's first Prime Minister.

Dedicating the statue to the nation, PM Modi said, "Statue of Unity is an answer to all those who question the existence of India. The height of the statue is to remind the youth that the future of the country will be as huge as this. It is also symbolic of our engineering and technology affordability."

(See STATUE OF UNITY on page 9)

MUDA conducts footpath clearance drive at Vijayanagar 4th Stage

Mysuru, Oct.31 (RK&SR)- Mysuru Urban Development Authority (MUDA) and Vijayanagar Police conducted footpath clearance drive on 80-feet road connecting Outer Ring Road-Basavanahalli stretch in Vijayanagar 4th Stage here this morning.

A team of MUDA officials, headed by Executive Engineer B.K. Sureshbabu, Assistant Executive Engineer Ramachandra, Assistant Executive Engineer Arunkumar, Assistant Engineers Rohith and Anand, carried out this drive under the guidance of their Commissioner P.S. Kantharaj.

The operation was conducted following a large number of complaints to MUDA filed by public against the footpath encroachers.

The street vendors and shopkeepers had encroached the footpath and were causing inconvenience to pedestrians, public and vehicle movement on this road stretch. Though MUDA had issued several warnings to clear the encroachments, the shopkeepers failed to heed to their notices.

Today, MUDA hired four tippers and a JCB earthmoving machine from Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) and cleared all encroachments with the help of 10 gang men in presence of tight Police security provided by Vijayanagar Police. Police Inspector B.G. Kumar was present at the spot.

Though some shopkeepers had cleared their shops voluntarily after taking all their belongings, few others were reluctant to shift. However, MUDA gang men cleared the encroachments.

They cleared about 50 petty shops and pushcarts by afternoon on this road.

Hunsur Police nab nine dacoits from Kerala

The dacoits were waiting to loot those carrying hawala cash

Hunsur, Oct.31 (KK&KS)- Hunsur Police, who traced three teams of dacoits waiting to loot those carrying hawala money from Kerala to Bengaluru, have arrested nine dacoits of two teams and have seized three cars from them.

The arrested are 38-year-old Regan of Chowdalli House in Nedupuzha village of Thrissur district, 39-year-old Vinish Kumar of Padikkaparambil Mupliyam, 42-year-old Mohan Das of Sultan Tekam Betta village in Wayanad district and 39-year-old Satish Kumar of Puthechanam village of the first team, who were arrested at about 11.30 pm on Monday night.

The dacoits of the second team, who were arrested at about 1.30 am, are 30-year-old Nikhil of Neeramankara Perampalli village, 39-year-old Nayaz of Taliparamba Syed Nagar in Kannur district, 47-year-old Saji Josh of Poyal Church Camp in Eratti taluk, 37-year-old Anish Thomas of Mundayamparamba village and 36-year-old Ritish of Muppalam village.

As soon as the Police arrested the dacoits of the two teams, the members of the third team comprising Sukhish, Razak and Crush left their car behind and escaped, according to the Police who also said that one Subbu was the leader of the three teams of dacoits, who had hatched a plot to loot.

Details: Hunsur Police, who were patrolling Hunsur Highway on Monday at about 11.30 pm, saw an Innova SUV (KL-64 F-8569) with four persons inside it parked near Kuppekolagatta in a suspicious manner and took them into custody. On enquiry, the Cops came to know that they were the members of a dacoit gang led by one Subbu.

On further interrogation, they reportedly told the Police that there are three teams of dacoits on the road from Yelwal to Thithimathi, waiting to loot hawala money.

The Hunsur Police immediately got alert and proceeded on the road from Yelwal towards Thithimathi during which they found another Innova SUV (KL-63 B-1583) parked about 50 mts. inside the forest area and immediately surrounded the vehicle and nabbed the dacoits of the second team.

The Police also found another car (KL-08 AY-1794) parked at a distance, but the occupants of the vehicle had escaped into the forest. The Cops then seized the car and on inspecting the seized vehicles, they (Police) found iron rods and sticks inside them.

The arrested dacoits were produced before a Court, which has remanded them to judicial custody.

Hunsur Circle Inspector K.C. Poovaiah, Hunsur Rural Police Sub-Inspector Shivaprakash and staff Raviswamy, Doddaiah, Srinivasa, Lingarajappa, Dinesh, Shivaprakash, Aleem, Suresh, Kumar, Manju, Manohar and Anil, took part in the nabbing and seizing operation.

VOICE OF THE READER

People-friendly Jan Aushadhi Kendras

Sir,

The scheme of selling medicines at subsidised cost in Pradhan Mantri Jan Aushadhi Kendras by Government of India for the benefit of common man, poor people in particular, is launched about three years back. I hadn't experienced the benefit so far as I never thought of going there since it's a habit to buy from regular outlets.

I just gave it a try recently in one such outlet, off Kalidasa Road in Mysuru. I was really surprised. The well-informed Pharmacist, with a warm gesture and with the online support, dispensed the drugs based on prescription. He advised on the generic contents and their combinations available. Best part was the bill. It was almost 75 per cent less than what I used to pay monthly in regular pharmacy.

While I notice lot of people waiting in regular pharmacies, it surprises me why still people won't go to Jan Aushadhi Kendras? I heard that it's partly due to wrong impression that medicines from such subsidised outlets aren't of good quality and also due to belief that all drugs aren't available. I got all the seven different drugs prescribed by my Physician for my mother without any confusion whatsoever.

It pains one to hear that a few outlets got closed because of less turnovers. I feel the benefit of the Jan Aushadhi Kendras need to be informed through all possible ways like print, digital and social media so as to reach common man.

People who suffer the pain of high expense on regular medicine should buy from these outlets. Further, such people-friendly schemes should also be supported by doctors and hospitals by advising medicine by generic name as per rules and avoid prescribing by brand names.

In this week's Pet Talk, Maneka tells how to snake-proof one's house and suggests remedies for snake bite

Pet Talk

Maneka Gandhi

I have just brought a stray cat home. Her coat is very dull. What can I do?

Since medical issues could be to blame, it's important to act quickly. Have your cat checked by a vet as soon as possible. If allergies, infections, or other disorders, are ruled out, you can move on to other causes of your cat's coat deficiency. The most common cause of dull coats in cats is poor diet. Your cat's fur and skin need the right amounts of vitamins, minerals, carbohydrates, proteins, and essential fats to remain healthy and shiny. If the amounts get out of balance, dry skin and dull fur will result. Since she has come from the road, she will need good food to bring her to optimum health.

Some cats need some help with grooming, whether it's because of weight, injury, old age, or a disease like arthritis that makes it difficult to reach certain areas. Give your cat a hand; brush her regularly with a good-quality cat brush. This removes mats and tangles in the fur and spreads essential skin oils through the coat, keeping it healthy and shiny. Don't overdo bathing. If you bathe your cat too regularly, it will backfire and dry out the skin. When the essential skin oils are removed, the fur becomes dry and dull. Most cats only need a bath every couple of months at the most. Be sure you're using a cat-specific shampoo, as human shampoo will be too harsh on your cat's sensitive skin.

How to keep snakes away from your house or how to snake proof one's house?

Ensure that your garden/lawn is tidy with shrubs kept away from the house. Snakes will shelter under shrubs and in timber stacks to avoid the hottest parts of the day. It is also important to ensure that food scraps are disposed of properly to discourage rats and mice, as snakes are attracted to places where they can find rodents. Blocking off as many potential access points as possible can significantly reduce the chance of snakes entering your house. Install screens on doors and windows. Block any holes around the house, including those between the roof and ceiling. Extra care should be taken during summer when the snakes are most active. In areas that experience flooding, snakes will move to higher ground during a flood. Take extra precautions at these times.

Are venomous snake bites curable?

There are two phases in the treatment of snake bites. i. The emergency treatment on site and during transport to an appropriate health care facility.

ii. The health care facility stabilises the patient, administers antivenin if deemed necessary, and provides supportive treatment.

Phase one of snake bite treatment: In the past there have been many home remedies and treatments, along with snake bite kits and other treatment methods, many of which have been shown to make the effects of the snake bite worse. Consequently, guidelines have been issued, used after the threat of additional bites to the patient or others is eliminated, about what to DO and what NOT TO DO if a snakebite occurs.

Following are the recommendations: i. Seek medical attention as soon as possible; ii. Try to remember the colour and shape of the snake, which can help with identification and treatment of the snake bite; iii. Keep still and calm.

This can slow down the spread of venom; iv. Apply first aid if you cannot get to the hospital right away; v. Lay or sit down with the bite below the level of the heart; vi. Wash the bite with soap and water; vii. Cover the bite with a clean, dry dressing.

Do NOT do any of the following: i. Do not pick up the snake or try to trap it; ii. Do not wait for symptoms to appear if bitten, rather seek immediate medical attention; iii. Do not apply a tourniquet; iv. Do not slash the wound with a knife; v. Do not suck out the venom; vi. Do not apply ice or immerse the wound in water; vii. Do not drink alcohol as a painkiller; viii. Do not drink caffeinated beverages; ix. Others suggest no use of electric shocks for any snake bite.

Phase two of snake bite treatment: The second phase of treatment consists of stabilisation and supportive care and, when medically indicated, administration of antitoxin (antivenin) specific for the snake species and a tetanus booster vaccine. A good practice is to call your local poison control centre or the national Poison Help line AIIMS, New Delhi (1800 116 117), and also to consult a toxicologist and a surgeon to help care for the patient. Certain patients may require surgical treatment and admission to the hospital.

The treatment of non-venomous snake bites includes local wound care at the site of the bite, removing snake teeth if left in the bite site, attending to any trauma at the bite site, and a tetanus booster if needed. Some wounds may become infected and require additional treatment with antibiotics.

How often should I bathe my cow? What type of soap should be avoided?

It depends upon the conditions you keep your cow in. If the surroundings are muddy, or you keep her standing in her own dung, both of which should not happen - , then you should give her a shower every second day. If you keep her clean and healthy, once in a month is more than enough. The hindquarters, thighs and udder should be washed thoroughly before milking. It is advised to avoid detergent soap for washing.

How much water does a cow drink every day?

Up to 50 litres, so you should have a water trough of fresh clean water so she has free access to water whenever she wants. Make a system with a tap so that a valve turns on to refill the trough with more fresh clean water.

Why does my dog vomit yellow foam?

A dog may vomit yellow foam simply because his stomach is empty and the bile can be irritating. Even with an intestinal blockage, your dog may vomit yellow mucus because there is something obstructing his intestines. This can be avoided by giving the dog frequent meals in small quantities. If there's something in the vomit besides yellow foam, it may help to take a sample to your veterinarian and get your dog checked by a vet.

When Sardar Patel had to be literally carried to Town Hall stage

Nonagenarian recounts his experience when India's Iron Man visited Mysuru in 1948

The 91-year young Prof. K.G. Sathyanarayana recounting his experience with Star of Mysore reporter at his residence in Kuvempunagar this morning.

FROM THE ALBUM: A young Rover Scout Sathyanarayana standing behind Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel during the latter's visit to Mysuru in 1948. The then State Police Chief C.M.H. Janajoth Singh is also seen.

Mysuru, Oct. 31 (MTY&BCT)- "When Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel visited Mysore in 1948 as India's Home Minister, he had high fever and myself, along with the State Police Chief had to literally carry him on to the dais that was set up at a height of seven to eight feet at Town Hall."

These were the words of nonagenarian Prof. K.G. Sathyanarayana, who in 1948 lifted Sardar Patel to the stage along with the then State Top Cop C.M.H. Janajoth Singh. Sathyanarayana was the leader of Rovers Scouts Unit at Maharaja's College then. A resident of Panchamanthra Road in Kuvempunagar now, 91-year-old Sathyanarayana says that the memory of Sardar Patel's visit was still fresh in his mind.

"Since today is the 143rd birth anniversary of Sardar Patel and our Prime Minister Narendra Modi is unveiling the world's tallest statue "Statue of Unity" downstream of the Narmada Dam, I thought that my experience with Sardar Patel in Mysore might interest your readers," Prof. Sathyanarayana told Star of Mysore this morning.

Proudly displaying his photo along with Sardar Patel and C.M.H. Janajoth Singh, he said that in 1948 (he does not remember the date) when Patel came to Mysore, the atmosphere was charged up at Town Hall where he was to address the students and a large audience. It was a vast place and the present Makkaji Chowk was not there then.

"I was heading the 250-member Rover Scouts Unit at the College and I was the in-charge of security along with the local Police. A giant stage was set up at the Town Hall and it was at a height of seven to eight feet. As Sardar Patel came to the venue, I was told that Patel was suffering from fever and had to be carried to the stage for him to deliver the speech," he narrated.

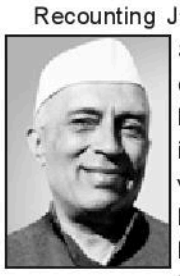
"Without shirking my responsibilities, Janajoth Singh and myself literally carried Sardar Patel slowly through the steps and made him sit on a chair on the dais from where he delivered an awe-inspiring speech for 45 minutes," he said. "Only Janajoth Singh, myself and Sardar Patel were on the dais and all the rest were seated among audience," he said and it was a moment of pride to carry the national leader.

Profile: Sathyanarayana, son of Nanjamma and K.R. Gopalaiah, was born on 9.5.1928 at Konanur village in Arakalagud Taluk, Hassan. He completed his primary education at Konanur and studied his high school at Banumaiah High School and intermediate schooling at First Grade College, Mysore. Later, he joined Maharaja's College for his BA and secured Bachelor of Teaching degree at Mysore University.

Sathyanarayana completed his MA History at Nagpur University and secured M.Ed degree at Karnatak University, Dharwad. He went on to secure his Advance PG degree in 1966 at Bristol University, United Kingdom.

He taught at various institutions, served as HM and Principal before retiring as the Director of Department of State Educational Research and Training (DSERT) in 1983. [DSERT is now Department of Public Instructions].

On Nehru's visit



Recounting Jawaharlal Nehru's visit to Mysore in 1948, Prof. Sathyanarayana said, "When the then PM Nehru came to Mysuru along with the daughter of an Ambassador, a large number of people had gathered in city. Due to the rush, the lady along with Nehru went missing for some time as the crowd, shouting Nehru's name, rushed forward to meet him. Even Nehru was searching for her. I was near Nehru and I patted on his back and told him that he had a great fan following in Mysore. To this, Nehru responded with a smile and a nod," he narrated.

Later, the Police were able to locate the Ambassador's daughter amidst the crowd and she was brought to Nehru," Sathyanarayana added.

PM unveils Statue of Unity

Prime Minister Narendra Modi dedicates the World's Tallest Statue of Sardar Patel in Gujarat this morning

Crediting Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel for "uniting India," PM Modi said, "Had Sardar Patel not united the country, we would need visas to see lions or pay homage at Somanath or view the Charminar in Hyderabad. Patel converted India's diversity into its biggest strength. The country is today following the path shown by Patel and is moving towards becoming the world's greatest economic and strategic power."

The project took 42 months to complete. Apart from the statue itself, there are five other related sites that are constructed along with the world's tallest statue. These include the walkway, the ticket counter, the food court, the four-lane approach highway, and the 'Shrestha Bharat Bhavan'- a 52-room three-star lodging facility for the visitors coming to see the monument.

Launching an attack on those opposing the Statue of Unity, Modi says he is "amazed" that protesters are giving it a "political colour." "The statue is a symbol of country's respect to this great man. Praising great icons like Patel has also brought us criticism. It seems like we have committed a big crime."

What is Statue of Unity?

The statue shows Patel wearing a traditional dhoti and shawl, towering over the Narmada River. The statue has been designed by Padma Bhushan-winning sculptor Ram V. Sutar and has been built by Larsen and Toubro (that has a branch in Mysuru too) and the Sardar Sarovar Narmada Nigam Ltd.

The foundation stone for the project was laid in 2013. The Rs. 2,989 crore project took 42 months, and round-the-clock work by 4,076 labourers and 250 engineers to complete. They include around 800 locals and about 200 workers from China who worked in batches since September 2017.

Iron was collected from all over the country for the statue of Sardar Patel, also known as the Iron Man of India. 77,000 tonnes concrete was used and 5,700 tonnes steel for was used to build the framework. 1,850 tonnes of bronze sheets were also used.

Interesting facts of Statue

The Statue of Unity measures 182 metres in height. The height was picked as '182' metre to match the total Assembly constituencies in Gujarat. The Statue of Unity beats China's 'Spring Temple Buddha' (153 metres), Mayanmar's Laykyun Setkyar (116 metres), Japan's Ushiku Daibutsu (110 metres), USA's Statue of Liberty (97 metres) Thailand's The Great Buddha (91 metres) and Russia's The Motherland Calls (87 metres) as the world's tallest statue.

Construction began with the feet in January 2016, moving on next to the dhoti, the knees and then the shawl flung over the statue's shoulders, reaching all the way down. All these specifications, including showing Patel's legs clad in a dhoti and his feet in sandals, mean the statue is thinner at the base than the top.

This is unlike other tall statues, which have a wider base for stability. Besides this, the designers and engineers had to account for the wind factor, given the location and height of the Patel statue, and to factor in the possibility of earthquakes. It can sustain wind velocity of 220 kilometres per hour and earthquakes measuring up to 6.5 on the Richter Scale.

Special Selfie Points

The statue will have a viewing gallery at a height of 153 metres and can accommodate up to 200 visitors at a time. Facilities for the public ranges from Selfie Points created in a 5 km radius around the statue, to a museum at the statue's base that has artefacts and documents from the life of Sardar Patel, including from his personal life.

The museum also has an 8-foot prototype of the head of the Statue of Unity. For accommodation, 3-star hotel with food service, guest amenities, and conference facilities is coming up. Two tent cities, comprising 50 and 200 tents, have also been set up on Narmada banks.

Open Day at CSIR-CFTRI

Innovative machines spur visitors' curiosity

Mysuru, Oct. 31 (KM)- The CFTRI campus was abuzz with a potent mix of curiosity and excitement for the two-day Open Day that concluded last evening. The event was organised by the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research (CSIR) and Central Food Technological Research Institute (CFTRI), Mysuru.

Hundreds of people from diverse walks of life – school children, senior citizens, housewives, young professionals and teachers revelled in the opportunity of being able to witness first-hand, CFTRI's research and development activities.

The Open Day is perhaps the only window of opportunity people get to visit CFTRI premises and understand the inroads that the Institute is making in the domain of food and nutrition.

At the exhibition, the CFTRI staff patiently answered the audiences' questions as they walked them through the institutions' latest technologies, food processing units, machineries, experiments and demonstrations. Here is a sneak peek into some of the exhibits.

Slicer cuts lemon into 16 pieces

The Design and Fabrication Unit exhibited machines that were new, exciting and definitely not commonplace. A spouted bed roaster, a briquetting machine, a continuous ragi mudde making machine, an evaporator facility and a super critical liquid extractor were some of the offerings. The potential and prowess of these intricate machines piqued the visitors' curiosity.

Bharat, a Senior Technical Assistant from the Food Engineering Department, enthralled the audience with a high-powered industrial lemon-slicer. The equipment which is not electricity-dependent could actually cut a lemon into sixteen pieces at one go.

A healthy source of vitamins, minerals

The Departments of Grain Science and Technology and Protein Chemistry Technology presented their audience with useful insights on how they could improve their overall quality of health and life, by improving the nutritional contents of food on their plate.

Dr. Sachin from the Protein Chemistry Technology Department said, "It is our earnest endeavour to help people understand the sources of good quality plant-based protein. People are unaware that protein can have therapeutic value too such as anti-oxidant properties and cancer-fighting abilities. It is when platforms like these educate people on the beneficial value of protein that the public actually go to stores and buy these super-foods," he said.

Oil extraction machines

When you talk about food and nutrition, you cannot ignore oil. Devika, a senior research fellow had the audience eating out of her hands as she explained state-of-the-art oil extraction processes from seeds. "Our endeavours are aimed at using a combination of technologies and procedures that helps us extract oil from seeds without losing precious sources of protein," she said.

Not just a vegetarian fare, this one

The Department of Meat and Marine Sciences elaborated on technologies and processes to efficiently use and preserve foods of animal origin and from aquatic environment. Meat lovers happily munched on the free non-vegetarian snacks that the department handed out to them.

On display were long shelf-life egg-based products, mutton chops, ready-to-eat meat-based wafers, nutritional information and value of these products.

An ecosystem of knowledge and awareness

The climate at the Open Day was highly conducive to knowledge sharing, awareness building and information exchange in the areas of food science, food technology and nutrition research. For participants, it was a morning extremely well spent with people seeking and acquiring valuable insights on food and nutrition, a subject so simple yet so essential to the quality of our lives.

Purnima Kaul, a staff at CFTRI said, "It is essential that we have platforms such as these so that people understand technologies, innovation and research that go into creating healthy food. It is through understanding, learning and seeing that they make the right food choices to stay healthy and nourished."

Nagashree, a housewife, said, "As a homemaker and a mother, it is essential for me to be aware of the latest innovations in the area of food. The knowledge gained from events like these helps me experiment with recipes at home. It also helps me make innovative nutrition-choices that are beneficial to my family."

Far-reaching impacts

So there you have it. It's just not about food. The CSIR-CFTRI Open Day has far more reaching impacts than that. In a nutshell, it's about nutrition, it's about science, it's about technology and it's about years of research. The event not only helps the public become more aware of nutritional issues in the long run, but also influences them to make the right food choices and rectify potentially hazardous deficiencies in this area.

Miraculous escape for elephant Gopalaswamy as truck carrying him hits electric pole

- The jumbo was being ferried to Alur in Hassan to capture rogue elephant
- Incident takes place near Kolavige village at about 10 pm yesterday

Hunsur, Oct.31 (Mahesh&KS)- Even as the death of elephant Ranga (Rowdy Ranga), who died after being hit by a private bus at Mathigodu, is still afresh in the minds of the people, Dasara Elephant Gopalaswamy had a miraculous escape from being electrocuted as the truck ferrying him to Hassan hit an electric pole resulting in the power line snapping and falling on him and the truck. Luckily, Gopalaswamy and the Forest staff accompanying him escaped from being electrocuted as the fuse blew away disconnecting the power supply.

The incident took place at about 10 pm near Kolavige village coming under Veeranahosahalli Range in Nagarahole Reserve Forest.

Gopalaswamy was being ferried to Alur in Hassan to capture a rogue elephant there. Gopalaswamy belongs to Kolavige Rama Temple Elephant Camp in Veeranahosahalli Range in Nagarahole Reserve Forest. Forest Guards Vinod and Ganesh, Mahout Diwakar and others were in the truck when the incident took place.

Meanwhile, the villagers, who rushed to the rescue of Gopalaswamy, broke the electric pole, which had fallen on the road and also removed the snapped power lines which had fallen on Gopalaswamy and the truck. They (villagers) then demanded CESC officials to set right the power line besides sending Gopalaswamy back to his camp.

WORD OF THE DAY

De rigueur

Pronunciation: duh-ree-GUR

Meaning: Prescribed or required by fashion, etiquette, or custom : proper.
Origin: If you're invited to a ball or other social function and the invitation includes the French phrase costume de rigueur, you are expected to adhere to a very strict dress code—typically, a white tie and tails if you're a man and a floor-length evening gown if you're a woman. In French, de rigueur means "out of strictness" or "according to strict etiquette"; one definition of our word rigor, to which rigueur is related, is "the quality of being strict, unyielding, or inflexible." In English, we tend to use de rigueur to describe a fashion or custom that is so commonplace within a context that it seems a prescribed, mandatory part of it.
Example: T-shirts now seem almost de rigueur in the West End.

THE ODD WORD

Free-for-all

A competition or fight open to all comers and usually with no rules.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Go down like a lead balloon

Meaning: Be poorly received by an audience or be completely unsuccessful or unpopular.
Origin: The phrase 'Go down like a lead balloon' also known as 'Go over like a lead balloon' originated in America and was first referenced in a Mom-N Pop cartoon that appeared in several US newspapers in June 1924. After that, the phrase was not used again until after the World War II, in the The Atchison Daily Globe, in May 1947. Since then, the phrase entered the mainstream language and has been in use. "Go over like a lead balloon" is the US version while "Go down like a lead balloon" is the UK version of the phrase.

Example: The proposal to cut the expenses went down like a lead balloon.

Now, ladies only coaches in three trains from city

Plans afoot to introduce Ladies Special Train

Mysuru, Oct.31 (NNN)- The passenger traffic between Mysuru and Bengaluru has steadily increased over the years. In view of this, there has been a lot of complaints from commuters travelling towards Bengaluru in the morning hours.

Also, there has been a demand, particularly from women, to earmark separate coaches for them. Hence, the Divisional Railway Manager (DRM), Mysuru Division, Aparna Garg has positively responded to the demand by earmarking coaches exclusively for ladies in three trains — Vishwamanava Express, Chamundi Express and Tipu Express. There is one coach each for women in Vishwamanava and Tipu Express and two in Chamundi Express.

Apart from this, since the security in trains between Mysuru-Chamarajanagar was also a concern expressed by daily commuters, the security onboard has been increased, according to Dr. S.G. Yatish, Senior Divisional Commercial Manager and PRO.

Ladies Special Train: There are also plans to introduce Ladies Special Train, though the planning is in initial stages. This will give a big boost to women daily commuters and garment workers travelling in both directions, especially from Mysuru, said a source in the Railways, speaking to Star of Mysore.

According to sources, among the three trains, Chamundi Express is the one used maximum by season ticket holders. There are at least 4,000 daily commuters between Mysuru-Bengaluru. As a result, women were finding it extremely difficult to get accommodation in the train.

As this train stops in all the major stations on way including Mandya, Maddur and Channapatna, the number of passengers go up and it becomes overcrowded. Apart from daily commuters, the number of passengers between the two cities is also increasing by the day.

The source said that the passengers travelling towards Bengaluru had gone up from 15,000 to 20,000 during weekdays and it touches the 30,000 mark on weekends and holidays.

'Ladies Compartment'

It may be recalled that a play titled 'Ladies Compartment' was staged a few years back in city and other places. It is a journey of seven women who commute daily in train between Mysuru-Bengaluru. The play was produced and directed by Sujatha Akki, an Economics Lecturer shuttling between Mysuru-Maddur in the 8.20 am Passenger train.
